

Bringing the Farm to the Table

CAPE COD GREEN INDUSTRY DIRECTORY

A directory of locally produced farm products; connecting the consumer and the farmer.

The Cape Cod Green Industry Directory, Eighth Edition, is a listing of Cape Cod growers-both agricultural and aquacultural farms and other farm products.

The Cape Cod Cooperative Extension hopes this directory will serve both commercial and residential consumers in utilizing locally grown products and assist local operations in increasing their markets and expanding production.

Since 1935, the Natural Resources Conservation Service (originally called the Soil Conservation Service) has provided leadership in a partnership effort to help America's private land owners and managers conserve their soil, water, and other natural resources. NRCS is an agency of the USDA.

NRCS employees provide technical assistance based on sound science and suited to a customer's specific needs. We provide financial assistance for many conservation activities. Participation in our programs is voluntary.

- Our Conservation Technical Assistance (CTA) program provides voluntary conservation technical assistance to land-users, communities, units of state and local government, and other Federal agencies in planning and implementing conservation systems.

- We reach out to all segments of the agricultural community, including underserved and socially disadvantaged farmers and ranchers, to ensure that our programs and services are accessible to everyone.

- We manage natural resource conservation programs that provide environmental, societal, financial, and technical benefits.

- Our science and technology activities provide technical expertise in such areas as animal husbandry and clean water, ecological sciences, engineering, resource economics, and social sciences.

- We provide expertise in soil science and leadership for soil surveys and for the National Resources Inventory.

The District offers not only thoughtful environmental approaches to conservation, but also emphasizes education about our natural resources. The District sponsors many environmental education programs that promote wise use of soil, water and related resources.

- * enhancing the economy and environment through horticultural education
- * use applied research and the research resources of the University of Massachusetts

Master Gardener Plant Clinic and Hotline

You can bring specimens and questions to the Master Gardener office, located in the Deeds and Probate Building at the Barnstable County Complex. Office hours are Monday thru Friday from 8:00 am to 4:30 pm.

Location: Deeds & Probate Bldg., Railroad Ave., Barnstable, MA

Hours of Operation:

March and November: Tuesday and Thursday 9:00 am – 3:00 pm

April and October: Monday, Wednesday and Friday 9:00 am – 3:00 pm

May through September: Monday through Friday 9:00 am – 3:00 pm

Our Plant Clinic & Hot Line identifies insects and weeds, and diagnoses plant disease and cultural problems around the home, garden and lawn. Trained Master Gardener volunteers are available to answer gardening questions from home gardeners by phone or in person. Walk-ins are welcome to come by with questions and/or samples for identification. We offer practical solutions and management strategies to help gardeners solve plant problems in an environmentally responsible manner. We can test your soil for pH if you bring a ½-cup sample, cost is $2.00 per sample.

"Buy Fresh, Buy Local"

Southeastern Massachusetts Agricultural Partnership (SEMAP) is a nonprofit organization whose mission is to help agricultural enterprises in southeastern Massachusetts achieve economic success. We work towards this mission through two program areas:

- Market Development: Working to create demand locally for locally-produced agricultural products.
- Business/Technical Assistance: Providing targeted business education and assistance to local agricultural enterprises.

Southeastern Massachusetts has a rich and diverse heritage of farming, with agricultural enterprises that range from dairy to vineyards to hydroponic vegetables, specialty herbs, and shellfish farms. These agricultural and aquacultural operations are increasingly challenged by the region's rapid growth and suburbanization, and by market factors that make it difficult to keep farming profitably.

Southeastern Massachusetts Agricultural Partnership (SEMAP) was formed in 1998 to help the region's farmers and aquaculture operators navigate the many agencies and organizations that provide technical, business management, educational, or financial support to farming operations in the region, and to address assistance needs identified within the farming community. The Partnership began as a network of service providers that promote viable agricultural operations in the Southeastern Massachusetts region, which includes Bristol and Plymouth Counties, Cape Cod, and the Islands.

In 2004, SEMAP incorporated in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and became a nonprofit organization. But the Partnership, now represented by our Operating Board and Coordinating Council, remains the heart of our organization. And our vision remains the same: a secure, profitable agricultural industry in Southeastern Massachusetts.

Established in 1888, Cape Cod Cranberry Grower's Association is one of the oldest farmer organizations in the country. By maintaining focus on grower issues, the goal of the Association is to "Enhance the economic viability of the Massachusetts cranberry grower". Our mission is to support and promote the cranberry growers of Massachusetts.

Established to standardize the measure with which cranberries are sold, the Cape Cod Cranberry Growers' Association (CCCGA) is one of the country's oldest farmers' organizations. Today, the CCCGA represents approximately 330 growers throughout Massachusetts. This unity has given growers both a single voice and collective strength in promoting the cranberry industry.

The CCCGA has a professional staff that assists growers in solving everyday problems, offering assistance in regulatory compliance, sponsoring professional development seminars and organizing association activities such as the Massachusetts Cranberry Harvest Festival each October. The CCCGA has invested over $500,000 in cranberry research to help improve the efficiency and environmental compatibility of cranberry farms. Through continued support, the CCCGA is working to ensure that cranberry farming can survive urbanization and that open space and clean water, vital to cranberry growing, will be preserved.

The CCCGA also operates a frost warning system. Frost protection is a vital part of cranberry farming. In the event of frost danger, cranberry grower members are notified by phone or through access to a special code-a-phone system that a frost may be occurring and to take appropriate management action to protect the buds (spring) or berries (fall).

Grower Membership in the CCCGA is voluntary and is based on an assessment of a farmer's crop. Businesses and organizations may join as Sustaining Members, while those individuals who support the ideals of the Association, but who are not active growers or in a related business, may join the CCCGA as Associate Members.

The Barnstable County Beekeepers Association (BCBA) is a 25-year-old group of more than 150 honeybee enthusiasts from Cape Cod and the surrounding area.

The BCBA meets monthly to discuss topics relevant to beekeeping on Cape Cod. Topics include hive management, honeybee pests and diseases, swarm control, plants and pollination, and extracting honey. In addition, the club runs a number of annual activities including a course on the Basics of Beekeeping, an annual spring pollinator plant sale, and displays at the Barnstable County Fair and the Harvest Festival.

Members of the BCBA range from beekeeping hobbyists with one or two hives to those who run beekeeping businesses with several hives. All members enjoy the following benefits:

- * access to the club's large library of videos and books on beekeeping
- * the opportunity to learn from established beekeepers' experiences as well as those of state and regional bee associations
- * subscription to the club's monthly newsletter
- * discounts for bees and beekeeping equipment
- * the chance to sell bee products at the fair and fest

Are You Going to the County Fair?

The Barnstable County Agricultural Society held its first county fair, consisting primarily of livestock and handicraft exhibits, in October of 1844 at the County Court House in Barnstable Village.

Now situated on a lovely, shady hillside in East Falmouth, the Fair features something for everyone. Unique landscape displays by area landscapers, Demonstration Gardens by the Master Gardeners, stages filled with local and international performing stars, as well as interesting exhibits and shows featuring lumberjack action, birds of prey, farm and exotic animals, magicians, a colorful kiddie-land and, of course, the midway filled with rides, food and fun! The Barnstable County Fair has all the history, sights, sounds and smells of the very best county fairs.

Bringing together the traditional blue ribbon events, like judging foods, produce, ornamental plants, home crafts, farm animal, with the tradition of the 4-H Hall, featuring the handiwork of local youngsters with a delicious concession stand, and adding the modern attractions that spark the interest of today's visitors, the Barnstable County Fair is Cape Cod's largest event and the administrators plan to continue bringing the fair's unique blend of attractions, to many thousands, for years to come.

Barnstable County Agricultural Commissions

Town agricultural commissions are appointed committees that encourage the pursuit of agriculture, and sustain the community's farm businesses and farmlands. Ag Commissions are addressing local priorities such as agricultural business development, increasing public awareness of the many benefits that agriculture provides, leadership development, outreach and education to increase the visibility of farms as businesses, and farmland protection. Ag Commissions also help farmers network with service providers, resolve potential problems in the early stages, and encourage political activity.

So, what does an Ag Comm do?

- * Serves as a local voice advocating for farmers, farm businesses and farm interests
- * Provides visibility for farming
- * Works with other town boards on issues facing the town
- * Helps resolve farm related problems or conflicts
- * Protects farmland
- * Assists with natural resource management

Cape & Islands Farm Bureau

Cape & Islands Farm Bureau is your local representation to the Massachusetts Farm Bureau and the American Farm Bureau. The Cape & Islands Farm Bureau is a non-profit organization made up of members involved in and promoting agriculture, aquaculture and equestrian lifestyles.

Our purpose is to educate the agricultural community for the enhancement of our environment, through the practice of agriculture.

We represent our members at local government levels maintaining our basic right to farm and through the Massachusetts Farm Bureau, to keep a handle on state issues which may affect our small farms.

If you have an interest in agriculture and maintaining the natural, basic lifestyle of Cape Cod, please call one of the officers listed below for a free brochure.
